Speaker: Ms. Ayushi Taneja and Ms. Shruti Aggarwal are student coordinator , Training and Placement Cell, Bharati College . Both of them are students of B. Com-VI sem, Bharati College

Type: Seminar

Objective of programme:

- To familiarize and develop group discussion skills in the students to make them ready for selection in jobs or higher studies

Summary of the event:

In order to familiarize the students group discussion and enhance the chances of selection of students, the session was opened by Ms. Ayushi Taneja and Ms. Shruti Aggarwal (Student Coordinators, Training and Placement Cell, Bharati College). Ms. Taneja started the session by giving a brief about importance of group discussion in selection process for a student's aspiring for higher studies or dream job. And thereafter, she started interacting with students to know about their understanding of key skills for GD. Ms. Taneja highlighted various key aspect that a student should keep in mind while appearing for the group discussion. She also informed the students about benefit of using facts and quotes during the GD. She further explained to students about various roles a participant can play during the GD (e.g., initiator, moderator, follower, trouble maker etc.). In order to provide hands on experience, students were divided in the group of 10 member each (in fourth group four student coordinators were added) and asked to perform group discussion for 15 minutes on the following topic "why red is red and blue is blue", "Old age home: a threat or boon", "Commercialization is westernization of India" and "Is persistence the key to success?" Ms. Aggarwal after every group discussion presented everyone with what went well and what can be improved in future (like, avoid use of hands, speaking in anger, avoid use of slangs, interrupting after excusing themselves). She also asked everyone to work on communication skills. She ended the session by offering thanks for active participation.
